ANALYSIS OF COURSE EXIT FEEDBACK
ACADEMIC YEAR 2021-22

INTRODUCTION

The college views its students as most important stakeholder in the assessment and development of the college. After completing a college course, the college wants to know how effective the course was at meeting learning objectives. A well-structured course exit feedback helps the institution to gauge the relevance of course materials, students' satisfaction with regard to teachers' teaching methods, practical utility of the course content, quality of internal assessment and their overall experience of academic environment.

OBJECTIVES

Following are the objectives sought to be achieved by the course exit feedback-

1. Assess the extent to which the outcome of the program is achieved.
2. Measure the perception of students regarding class participation, knowledge and skill development.
3. To invite the students to further incorporate feasible suggestions for future batches.
4. It foster a positive culture of improvement. It demonstrates to the students that they are committed to their intellectual advancement.
5. In providing course-end surveys, you encourage students to take part in their education. The students will feel more involved, which can create a stronger bond between the institution and its alumni.
6. By providing course-end surveys, the institution can narrow down areas for improvement if they know how students feel about specific areas of a course.

PROCESS

The students of the final year students (B.A.LL.B V and LL.B III) are supplied with a pre-printed MCQ style questionnaire to record their opinion. The recorded choices are then processed to obtain the Feedback Analysis Report.

SUBMISSION

The analysis of the teacher's feedback on course and identified curriculum gap then placed before the principal and discussed in the meeting of the teachers. The same analysis report was also placed before the IQAC cell.

ACTION TAKEN

As per the decision taken in the meeting of IQAC, the identified curriculum gaps were decided to be remedied by adopting different methods such as class discussion, guest lectures, organising seminars and workshops on relevant topics.

POLICY FOR COURSE EXIT SURVEY FROM THE

A questionnaire has been designed to seek feedback from final year students to collect their opinion/suggestions regarding the quality of academic environment of the college. The recorded choices are then processed to obtain the Feedback Analysis Report.

2. The provisions relating to contracts of indemnity and guarantee, of bailment and pledge, and of agency are contained in three chapters of the Indian Contract Act 1872 and in two other statutes: The Sale of Goods Act 1930 and the Indian Partnership Act. These transactions play a very important role in commerce and trade;

3. This course follows the course about the general principles that apply to all contracts. They deal with general principles that apply to each specific contractual relationship;
4. The study of this course will enable a good understanding of the purposes with which each of these transactions is made, the features of each of these transactions, and the rights and liabilities of the parties to them;
5. The course also emphasizes the study of remedies provided in these laws.

LC 0604 Tort and Consumer Protection Law:

1. The Law of Torts is about civil wrongs. The liability for such wrongs is distinct from liability under criminal law and contract law;
2. The negligence, defamation, trespass, assault, conspiracy, deceit are examples of such wrongs;
3. Tort law provides various remedies: compensation for injury and injunction. It is not governed by any statute, but has developed over centuries through principles developed by courts. It is therefore developmental and the law responds to the needs of the times;
4. The liability for new kinds of wrongs is recognised, or an existing wrong develops with contemporary needs;
5. The course enables study of the general principles of tortious liability and its difference from criminal and contractual liability;
6. The course also covers specific torts, and remedies available

3. Agricultural land is subject to such control and regulation as would enable its most effective and efficient use;
4. Although much of course content involves laws in force in the State of Maharashtra, the principles governing these laws are common across laws on the subjects in other states.

LO 1009 Humanitarian and Refugee Law:

1. The objective of this course is to familiarize the student with the expanding horizons of a branch of international law;
2. The law of war is today popularly referred to as International Humanitarian Law (IHL). A number of issues arise out of humanitarian consideration, which fixes responsibilities on the nation-states to discharge their traditional responsibility under International Law;
3. In view of the expanding tenants of international law of human rights, war and the various issues and crimes of individuals have to be dealt in without violating the international norms;
4. In this course, the student is presented an overview of various aspects and institutional mechanism that has been developed over the years by states parties;
5. The second part on Refugee Law is also critically important and again brings forth the responsibility on nation-states to discharge their obligations in the prevention of Statelessness and the resultant consequences that arise out of loss of nationality. In view of the compelling jurisprudence of Human Rights Law, the states have an onerous duty to extend protection to people who lose their nationality for no fault of us;
6. In this area again the aspects of Human Rights highlights that Individuals being a subject and object of international law, the responsibility of the States to protect the rights that are guaranteed under various international legal instruments.

Course Outcome Coverage in Concurrent Assessment

In the best interest of students and their sound learning of curriculum, continuous internal evaluation is an inevitable process for a college. In that direction, the College arranges the following internal assessment of the students. Clarity of thoughts, understanding of the topic, ability for structured analytical presentation of information and the other are covered in concurrent assessment.

In view of these course outcomes, the college deploys various techniques and methods so that the performance of the students can be assessed in an apt manner.

Questions for Assignments –

Students are required to write descriptive answers of five questions covering core area of the subject. This facilitates better understanding of the subject. The tutorials are assessed and communicated with the marks obtained. This process is organised by the College other than the examinations held by the Savitribai Phule Pune University. Another object served by this system is to boost weak learners as well as sharpen the capabilities of bright learners. The descriptive answers allow the students to develop their analytical skills, comprehensive writing, and elaboration capacities.

Multiple Choice Questions –

Students are assigned to solve multiple choice questions in class within a scheduled time of a lecture. This exercise of the students enables them to have objectivity in study and understanding the subjects of their curriculum. This assessment system instigates students to have in-depth study of the subject. The objective nature of questions demands thorough study of the subjects by the students.

Group discussion-

Another method of group discussion is used to strengthen the soft skills of students covered in course outcomes.

Presentations- The students are also given exposure by way of presentations on various topics to imbibe the skill of argument in them. Since the profession of law requires presentation skills, the college conducts presentations of students as per the subjects.

The combination of descriptive and objective answers creates sufficient scope of inclusive internal evaluation of students.

ANALYSIS OF COURSE EXIT FEEDBACK
ACADEMIC YEAR 2021-22

INTRODUCTION

The college views its students as most important stakeholder in the assessment and development of the college. After completing a college course, the college wants to know how effective the course was at meeting learning objectives. A well-structured course exit feedback helps the institution to gauge the relevance of course materials, students' satisfaction with regard to teachers' teaching methods, practical utility of the course content, quality of internal assessment and their overall experience of academic environment.

OBJECTIVES

Following are the objectives sought to be achieved by the course exit feedback-

1. Assess the extent to which the outcome of the program is achieved.
2. Measure the perception of students regarding class participation, knowledge and skill development.
3. To invite the students to further incorporate feasible suggestions for future batches.
4. It foster a positive culture of improvement. It demonstrates to the students that they are committed to their intellectual advancement.
5. In providing course-end surveys, you encourage students to take part in their education. The students will feel more involved, which can create a stronger bond between the institution and its alumni.
6. By providing course-end surveys, the institution can narrow down areas for improvement if they know how students feel about specific areas of a course.

PROCESS

The students of the final year students (B.A.LL.B V and LL.B III) are supplied with a pre-printed MCQ style questionnaire to record their opinion. The recorded choices are then processed to obtain the Feedback Analysis Report.

SUBMISSION

The analysis of the teacher's feedback on course and identified curriculum gap then placed before the principal and discussed in the meeting of the teachers. The same analysis report was also placed before the IQAC cell.

ACTION TAKEN

As per the decision taken in the meeting of IQAC, the identified curriculum gaps were decided to be remedied by adopting different methods such as class discussion, guest lectures, organising seminars and workshops on relevant topics.

POLICY FOR COURSE EXIT SURVEY FROM THE

A questionnaire has been designed to seek feedback from final year students to collect their opinion/suggestions regarding the quality of academic environment of the college. The recorded choices are then processed to obtain the Feedback Analysis Report.

LO 1009 Humanitarian and Refugee Law:

1. The objective of this course is to familiarize the student with the expanding horizons of a branch of international law;
2. The law of war is today popularly referred to as International Humanitarian Law (IHL). A number of issues arise out of humanitarian consideration, which fixes responsibilities on the nation-states to discharge their traditional responsibility under International Law;
3. In view of the expanding tenants of international law of human rights, war and the various issues and crimes of individuals have to be dealt in without violating the international norms;
4. In this course, the student is presented an overview of various aspects and institutional mechanism that has been developed over the years by states parties;
5. The second part on Refugee Law is also critically important and again brings forth the responsibility on nation-states to discharge their obligations in the prevention of Statelessness and the resultant consequences that arise out of loss of nationality. In view of the compelling jurisprudence of Human Rights Law, the states have an onerous duty to extend protection to people who lose their nationality for no fault of us;
6. In this area again the aspects of Human Rights highlights that Individuals being a subject and object of international law, the responsibility of the States to protect the rights that are guaranteed under various international legal instruments.

Course Outcome Coverage in Concurrent Assessment

In the best interest of students and their sound learning of curriculum, continuous internal evaluation is an inevitable process for a college. In that direction, the College arranges the following internal assessment of the students. Clarity of thoughts, understanding of the topic, ability for structured analytical presentation of information and the other are covered in concurrent assessment.

In view of these course outcomes, the college deploys various techniques and methods so that the performance of the students can be assessed in an apt manner.

Questions for Assignments –

Students are required to write descriptive answers of five questions covering core area of the subject. This facilitates better understanding of the subject. The tutorials are assessed and communicated with the marks obtained. This process is organised by the College other than the examinations held by the Savitribai Phule Pune University. Another object served by this system is to boost weak learners as well as sharpen the capabilities of bright learners. The descriptive answers allow the students to develop their analytical skills, comprehensive writing, and elaboration capacities.

Multiple Choice Questions –

Students are assigned to solve multiple choice questions in class within a scheduled time of a lecture. This exercise of the students enables them to have objectivity in study and understanding the subjects of their curriculum. This assessment system instigates students to have in-depth study of the subject. The objective nature of questions demands thorough study of the subjects by the students.

Group discussion-

Another method of group discussion is used to strengthen the soft skills of students covered in course outcomes.

Presentations- The students are also given exposure by way of presentations on various topics to imbibe the skill of argument in them. Since the profession of law requires presentation skills, the college conducts presentations of students as per the subjects.

The combination of descriptive and objective answers creates sufficient scope of inclusive internal evaluation of students.
